Scholarships in Theatre School

Scholarships in the School of the Theatre of the Golden Bough have been awarded to Lexie Grant of the Sunset school of Carmel and to Gwyneth Willner of the Monterey High School, the scholarships being conferred upon recommendation of the principals of

Mr. and Mrs. Kuster are also giving scholarship privileges to one student from each of the following high schools: Salinas, Pacific Grove, Watsonville and Santa Cruz. The names of the recipients will be announced in the next issue.

Permission to perform "The Nursery Maid of Heaven," which has never been given west of the Mississippi, has been received by the Theatre of the Golden Bough. This beautiful little miracle play of medieval Italy will be performed during the summer with the following cast: Gertrude Prince, Marian Boke Taylor, Dorothy Woodward, Ruth Kuster, Mae Harris Anson, Thomas Bickel, George Ball, Gwyneth Willner and Martha Heimann.

The play will be under the direction of Edward Kuster. It was his hope that the production could take place on the same evening with "The Mother of Gregory," the opening performance of the Theatre of the Golden Bough, but as it has developed that each play approaches the length of a full evening's performance it has been thought best to make "The Nursery Maid of Heaven" a principal feature of an evening later in the summer.

Mother of J. F. Devendorf Dies at Pacific Grove

Mrs. Grace Aram, mother of J. F. Devendorf of this city, passed away in Pacific Grove, where she had resided for fourteen years, last Sunday morning.

During her long illness, Mrs. Aram was cared for by her daughter, Miss Ida Devendorf, and there was never a day when her son Frank was here that he did not make the trip to the Grove to see his old mother.

Mrs. Aram was about ninety years of age. Prior to coming to California, she had spent some years in Toronto, Canada, and in Michigan, where her children were born.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, Rev. C. E. Irons officiating at the services.

Tomb of Fr. Serra Ready to Dedicate

By Laura Bride Powers

All the world knows that the Pioneer of the West—Fray Junipero Serra—sleeps in the old Mission San Carlos by the River Carmelo and the blue,

But it is news to the world—and news even to Californians—that the First Pioneer will sleep the long sleep in a tomb that surpasses in beauty and in historic tradition any resting-place in the West.

It stands alone among sepulchral memorials in its simple dignity, ornate in the Spanish tradition, but new together by the continuity of thought that only an inspired son of Spain could accomplish without bombast, without overstatement—for Serra was a simple soul, a true son of St. Francis, and the grandiose is not for such as he.

And California—and the Monterey terrain in particular—has to acknowledge its artistic debt to Father Raymond M. Mestres, upon whose shoulders the spiritual burden of Serra has fallen, and Jo Mora, the California sculptor, for what will establish Monterey and Carmel as the Mecca of the West.

This tomb—sarcophagus seems too ostentatious a term for the resting-place of the simple-souled pioneer of western civilization—will stand up esthetically in any company, East or West. It is enshrouded in a kind of romantic feeling that exist nowhere else in America. There are other great shrines—Mt. Vernon, to which all lovers of liberty turn with ardor and tender reverence; and Monticello, and Lincoln's tomb, and others associated with the nation's birth and growth.

But the shrine of Junipero Serra is different. It manifests the spirit of a Latin race, merged into New America—picturesque, rose red, poetic, glorious Western America, born in the pure spirit of love of God and his children. And it brings with it all the color and romance of Latin lands and wine-red beauty that intrigues us.

Now, how shall this beautiful tomb and all it symbolizes be presented to the world.

August 28th is the date of the passing of Fray Junipero. And the day that the church holds as his spiritual birth—therefore a day of rejoicing.

Shall not California do herself the honor—without thought of creed or race—to make of this day, or week—a period of celebration worthy of its inspiration?

The occasion is far too big to be only a Catholic celebration, and in this feeling Father Mestres joins.

"This is California's affair, not ours," he said to me yesterday, full of joy that the dream of thirty-odd years has come true, "and all California should join us."

Let us make it the biggest celebration—religious, of course, at the beginning and the end—say of the last week in August, and the days between the most colorful Spanish-Mexican renaissance that intelligence and artistry can devise. Pageantry, barbecues, fandangoes—but let the development of the idea grow with the spirited people who live close to the loved land of Serra. They know how.

But let me add that we who are not so blessed as you will come when you call—and so will all California.

The music section will include Marie de Forest Emery, teacher of singing, and Almeda Colby, teacher of piano.

Warren Dayton's classes will take up reed and rattan work, the making of furniture, basketry, etc.

Hygiene Conference to Open Next Monday

It is the earnest desire of the physicians who will be at Arts and Crafts Hall next Monday, representatives of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Board of Health, that Carmel parents will avail themselves of the opportunity to have children who will enter school next fall examined for physical defects.

The importance of correcting physical defects in childhood is recognized in many countries throughout the world. Probably more work of this sort is being done in the United States at the present time than anywhere else in the world. In England, however, a great deal of attention is being paid to making children physically fit for their school life. The discovery and correction of decayed teeth, diseased tonsils, adenoids, undernourishment and other defects may not only enable the child to make good progress in school but such corrections may also have a great deal to do with the prevention of diseases in adult life.

At the local conference complete physical examinations, free of cost, will be conducted by competent physicans, dentists and nurses. Children who are discovered to be suffering from underweight will be given instructions for remedying this condition. The correction of physical defects will be left to the discretion of the parents. It is hoped that this campaign will have a far-reaching effect in removing physical handicaps from children.

Death of Noted Engineer

The death of Colonel H. M. Byllesby, principal owner of the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company, is reported from Chicago.

Col. Byllesby was a great engineer, having been connected with many huge public utility enterprises over a long stretch of years.

During his connection with the local light and power concern, the service has increased both in volume and efficiency.

Only recently the deceased spent a considerable time at Pebble Beach.

Carmel Follies a Decided Hit

By A. Thin Space

Of all stage offerings, perhaps none is more dependent upon auxiliary co-operation than so-called vaudeville, such as the Carmel Follies which last nights witnessed at Arts and Crafts Theatre last week-end.

As the writer sat through this varied show, the thought came to him: "What would this whole thing amount to if it were not for the music." Others, observing and enjoying the acts superficially, probably did not realize to what an extent Fred and Irene Campbell Cator and the orchestra contributed to their enjoyment. This is one fact which brings out clearly the statement made in the foregoing paragraph.

To further emphasize our point, we would call attention to the excellent stage setting provided for nearly every number on the program.

About the show itself, there can be no question but that "Sporting Life" and "White Shadows in the South Seas," the first and last numbers on the program, were the best. The chorus, the dancing and the costuming left little to be desired. "Famous People," put on by Arthur Cyril, was a disappointment. When we read our program we thought of the Carmelites we were going to see on the stage. Instead we saw only General Grant, Abraham Lincoln, Babe Ruth and Pavlowa. Trade at home, Arthur.

An empty house has been the bane of many an ambitious theatrical promoter, but Charles Van Riper before a full house demonstrated that "The Empty House" can bring the shekels into the box office.

Another disappointment and again the printed bill deceived. "Lady Brookdale's Embroidery" made me think of "Getting Gertie's Garter" and "Mary's Ankle," and all we got was a dialogue between Dr Watson (Hobart Glassell) and Sherlock Holmes (Arthur Cyril), with the latter sitting on an embroidery needle as a climax.

Everyone enjoyed "The Spanish Shawls." Marion Taylor's voice gave to "Marcheta" a most entrancing quality and won a deserved encore. The dance numbers were excellent. The closing comedy of the act might well have been eliminated.

"That girl can dance," said a lady near us when Anita Reiners was stepping and gliding through her specialty. I'll say she can. Few, if any, have danced better in Carmel. In this act Arthur Cyril, as the Chinese Soldier Man, made us hark back to the old Tivoli.

When Frances Glassell dances everyone sits up and takes notice. Her fairy-like elusiveness in the Oriental dance, with its John-the-Baptist conclusion, was a big number of the program.

All that "Captain Flapjack" needs to make it an Orpheum Circuit act is a boat surrounded by real water. The comedy of Ernest Scheninger, Charles Van Riper and Kit Cooke was good.

The reason why "The Villain" was No. 11 on the program was because Arthur Cyril had seven changes of program and that was the only place it could be worked in. The act was a real scream. But, instead of our sympathies being with the heroine (Alice MacGowan), we found ourselves contemplating the feet of the Che-ild (Ernest Schweninger). The villain and the villainess (Hobart and Kit) should be put away for life for the mean stuff they tried to pull on a widow and her offspring.

Of the four numbers rendered by the quartet (Roberta A. Leitch, Grace Mora, Calvin Luther and Samuel J. Miller), "Sleep" was the best. We must have more of them.

"Tentative" Permit for $250,000 Hotel Granted by Trustees

With but one dissenting vote, that of Trustee Helen W. Parkes, the city board of trustees has granted a "tentative" permit to a company represented by Mrs. Laura Shipley to erect a $250,000 hotel near Carmel beach. This is the first tentative permit granted here.

The meeting opened with a presentation [illegible] being not only a stickler for order, but desiring to show what a harmonious board we now have, tendered to the president of the board, Hon. William T. Kibbler, a gavel and stand, and his honor accepted with a bang.

For the next five years, in accordance with a lease to be drawn by City Attorney Campbell, and with the ap[illegible] bath house, owned by the city, will be conducted by Walter M. Basham.

The proposed general sewer system came in for a deal of discussion. Trustees J. B. Dennis and H. P. Larouette described the work as detailed to them by them by City Engineer Howard D. Severance. The local [illegible] with the trustees to do something definite on Tuesday, May 20.

Urging that the city provide a playground and that for that purpose Block 69, owned by the city, be utilized, Robert Wormser addressed the board. For the use of the property it is said Wormser is willing to guarantee the city $500 a year. Trustee Dennis has the matter in hand. The property proposed to be used is that upon which the Harrison Memorial Library is to be built.

The Hogle cottage down at Carmel Highlands has been taken by Mrs. Herma R. Smith.

Madam Ann Dare, former Carmelite, and Miss Lydia B. Davis, both now of Laguna Beach, are in Monterey for the summer.

On Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. George F. Beardsley left by motor for their summer home near Sissons, at the base of Mt. Shasta. They will be away five or six weeks.

California Primaries Pick Coolidge, McAdoo

Carmel's practical interest in last Tuesday's primary election was represented by the votes of 251 electors out of a registration of about 500.

As was expected, the Coolidge ticket defeated the Johnson ticket in this city, and the McAdoo list of delegates won over the uninstructed list.

The vote in Carmel:

Johnson, 56.
McAdoo, 24.

We salute the corporations whose names are listed above. They are pioneers of "America, the Beautiful."

They are companies who have declared they will not advertise on billboards in the country where the billboards spoil the natural scenery.

And to the list of corporations we add the name of Flo Ziegfeld, judge of beauty and of "Follies" fame, who has just announced he will tear down his enormous electric sign at Times Square, New York, and spend the $50,000 that it cost to run and the money that his billboards cost per year, in forms of advertising that do not mar the beauty of our scenery.

The rapid spread of the billboard threatened to doom the beauty of outdoor America. But now it is the highway billboard which is doomed. Where these corporations have led, others will follow.

Of what avail were the rocks and rills of America if a billboard barred the view? Of what dignity a templed hill, if a lurid advertisement screamed from its side? What profit it if the woodsman spared the tree if the advertising man came along and tacked a sign on it?

The billboard has a place, an important place, in American life. But that place is in the city and town. A billboard in a city or town not only may screen unsightly vacant lots, but often it is itself attractive. But the billboard has absolutely no place in the country. There is no landscape, wild or cultivated, that is not ruined by the presence of a billboard.

The corporations named above have led the way. Doubtless others will quickly follow. But this matter should not be left wholly to voluntary action, for there probably would always be some callous concern who would continue to deface the landscape. The rural billboard should be abolished by Federal action—by placing a prohibitive tax on them.

Here recently for a week were Mr. and Mrs. Lawton Thomas of Fresno. They occupied their unique little cottage, Top o' the World, near Carmel Woods.

Eighty-four years young, Mrs. Kate Hunter, pioneer Carmelite, mother of Mrs. R. H. Greeley and Mrs. Fanny E. Dalbey, celebrated her birthday a few days ago. She is mentally active and physically vigorous.

While Colonel and Mrs. George S. Terry were shopping on Ocean avenue last Saturday afternoon, it is reported that their home on Monte Verde street was entered and valuables to the amount of several hundred dollars taken away. Marshal August Englund is investigating the affair.

On Saturday night, at the close of the Follies show, actors, orchestra, in fact all who assisted in the show, repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles [illegible] away an hour or two or three. Sunday, after the league ball game, practically the same crowd picnicked at Coral de Tiara.

"I Got Real Mad when I Lost My Setting Hen," writes Mrs. Hanna; N. J.

"When I went into our barn and found my best setter dead I got real mad. One package of Rat-Snap..." Comes in cakes, no mixing. No smell when dead rats. Three sizes. Prices, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Sold and guaranteed by

Young Ball Players to Clash This Afternoon

The Pals will play their sixth game this afternoon on the Carmel Woods diamond, when they cross bats with a team from the Salinas Y. M. C. A., the Pioneers.

The Carmel boys would greatly appreciate a good crowd of rooters. The contest will be hard-fought as the boys are evenly matched, both teams averaging one hundred pounds.

Glenn Leidig will start the game for the Pals and Gordie Campbell will share the work in the pitcher's box with him. The rest of the team will line up as follows: C. Judson, 1b; Snow, 2b; Storey, ss; Campbell and G. Leidig, 3b; M. Leidig, lf; Dickenson and Heron, cf; Burton, rf. Roach.

So far this season the Pals have won two and lost three games. They were defeated twice by the Piedmont Boy Scouts and-by the Montezuma Grammar School.

The Pals, in turn, conquered Pacific Grove in two games.

Goodwill Industries Launches Its Drive

Goodwill industries of Oakland and San Francisco are making their drive for funds to rebuild its home recently destroyed by fire. A home for crippled men and women, who are employed in rebuilding old furniture and in making old clothing wearable. At present they have to be sent to cheap lodging houses and restaurants, which is unsatisfactory.

The work of all departments is in lesson form as arranged by the school of handcraft, an organization working with the object of being of service to poor and unfortunate people of our cities. A twofold use is made of these articles—that of helping these people make a respectable living instead of having to rely on charity, and that of furnishng serviceable goods to the needy at low prices.

Please help.

Carmel and Monterey in Picture and Story

May "Camera Craft" contains an article by Samuel Adelstein, well-known photographer, "Fishermen and Fishing Boats," illustrated with many original photographs by the author. An extensive mention is made of Monterey and Carmel.

Two of the photos, "The Seaward Prow" and "Another Good Story," were taken from Monterey wharf. The other two fishing boat pictures were taken in San Francisco, and the wreck photo was taken at Honda the day following the wreck of the United States torpedo boat destroyers last September.

Two Month-End Plays by Anatole France and Lady Gregory

"The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," the rich and rapid comedy to be produced by Herbert Heron at the Arts and Crafts Theater on the evening of Friday, May 30, is the chief contribution of Anatole France to the drama. Although universally considered the greatest of living French authors, Anatole France is not primarily a playwright. But, being a supreme craftsman and a social satirist of the first, it is not remarkable to find he has done, in "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" a delicious, perfect piece of foolery, something to be relished by all who care for wit, style, charm and vitality in a play.

Though medieval in its plot and trappings, it is thoroughly up-to-date in its social satire, dealing as it does with subjects which are of all time, such as the high cost of living, the servant problem, the tendency to extravagance, the fashions of today and tomorrow, the medical profession's ignorance, the loquacity of women, and so on and so on. It is amazing how much there is in this two-act play. Yet it is simplicity itself, done in the broad medieval manner. And the language is the language of today, embellished only by the colorings of the author's delightful style. Without any of the artificial helps of the "Marry, go to 'sblood and 'sdeath" school, Anatole France has perfectly reproduced the tone and spirit of medieval comedy.

In his production of the play, Mr. Heron is striving for the same kind of doubly artistic effect. He has planned the setting, lighting and costuming to fit the broad simple movement of the piece, but long hours are being devoted to a minute and delicate attention to the details of intonation, by-play, facial expression, grouping, and all the subtleties that give life and charm to a performance.

To aid him in the production Mr. Heron has the competent assistance of a group of Carmel's best workers. Rhoda Johnson, Helena Conger and Esther Teare will make the bizarre and charming costumes, the Seideneck Studios will prepare the settings, Dr. Alfred Burton will make the properties, Calvin H. Luther will supervise the incidental music, Richard Johnson will manage the lights, and Hobart Glassell will look after the make-up. An account of the cast will be given next week.

"The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" will be preceded by Lady Gregory's favorite one-act play, "The Gaol Gate," which will also be noted in the next issue.

S. P. TO BOOST WEST ABROAD; EUROPEAN AGENTS TOUR COAST

European agents of the Southern Pacific company touring the west in order to get a better knowledge of the attractions of Pacific coast states. They will "sell" the west in Europe. From left to right—G. Ruhr of Hamburg, V. Merello of Genoa, H. Desmidt of Paris, R. G. Bonsor of London and V. Myirea of Liverpool.

THE Pacific coast is to become better known to business men and travelers from Europe.

As a part of a comprehensive plan to "sell" the Pacific coast to Europe, the Southern Pacific company has brought five of its European representatives here for an intensive course of study.

They were accompanied west by L. H. Nutting of the Southern Pacific's New York office. The visitors left El Paso April 1 to spend a month in visiting every section served by the Pacific System of the company in order that a thorough knowledge of the coast states and their advantages could be obtained.

In Arizona the foreign agents made the trip over the Apache trail, visiting Phoenix, Tucson, Yuma and Nogales and made a side trip over the company's Mexican west coast lines to Tepic.

Six days were set apart for a study of conditions and for sight-seeing in southern California. This included visits to San Diego and through the scenic Carriso gorge, an inspection of points of interest in the Imperial valley, a three-day visit in Los Angeles and a stop at Santa Barbara.

Leaving Santa Barbara, the itinerary called for visits at Del Monte, Watsonville, Santa Cruz and other points around Monterey bay.

After a period devoted to sight-seeing in San Francisco, Oakland and other parts of the bay district, the European representatives are scheduled to leave on April 22 for a tour through the San Joaquin valley visiting Fresno, Bakersfield, Merced and other cities with a side trip to the famous Yosemite valley with Sacramento the next point of call. Several days are to be spent by the foreign agents visiting Portland and other points in Oregon and Washington.

Enroute to the east, the visitors will visit Reno and Truckee and also make a side trip to Lake Tahoe. Ogden and Salt Lake City are also to be visited.

"We expect that the visit here of our representatives in England, France, Germany and Italy will do much to make the Pacific coast better known to Europe," it was stated by G. W. Luce, freight traffic manager, and J. H. R. Parsons, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific.

"The itinerary of the visiting agents was so arranged that all sections were visited by daylight under guidance of local representatives who could explain in detail the many advantages of our country.

"Upon returning to Europe, our representatives will have that first hand knowledge that undoubtedly will enable them to do a great deal of good for the Pacific coast in their contact with foreign business men and travelers."

COLOSSAL

"Colossal" is an adjective which is applied to anything remarkable for its great size. The "Colossus" was a famous statue of Apollo, the sun god, which was carved by Chares in 280 B. C. This gigantic statue, 105 feet high, dominated the harbor at Rhodes. The name also was applied to other large statues of antiquity and survives today in the adjective.

The hearing of testimony in the F. W. Nelson versus the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea et al. was resumed last Wednesday. When the evidence is all in, Judge J. A. Bardin will probably take the case under advisement, so that a decision may not be expected before the early part of June.

With the approach of the opening of Summer School of the Arts of the Theatre and the University of California extension course under the auspices of the Theatre of the Golden Bough, Miss M. Hollingsworth is handling a great deal of correspondence. The students are coming from all quarters.
